

The latest film in the long-running and popular science fiction franchise, "Star Trek Beyond," is out in theaters! With its release, we'll get to see a new cast of characters and an epic alien world. But the storyline's important too: The crew has been scattered around the galaxy because of a dangerous event called "the Event." To defeat it, they need to put aside their differences and work together. There will be no movie without this team effort — that's why we're looking forward to seeing it! While we're waiting for this sci-fi adventure to be released, take a break from your busy day with these top 37 websites and apps that will teach you virtually anything you want. Top 37 Websites and Apps to Teach You Anything #1: Duolingo is an online language learning platform available across all major platforms.
